Meet Our Team:

Meet Your Inside Team Cynthia Darst, 2018-08-21 Inside all of us is a collection of internal voices parts and beliefs that sometimes work in harmony and sometimes doesn't. When your Inside Team is working together everything can be great and life wonderful. But when your Inside Team isn't aligned you can feel stuck, anxious, confused or judge and beat up on yourself. Here is an example: Part A This could be amazing I want to go for it. Part B Are you insane You can't leave your job and go back to school. Part C You should just buckle down and work harder. Part D But I'm not happy It's time to change that. Part E And have your hopes crushed again. Part A Hey wait a minute When you've taken on something new in your life you've always made it work. You could do this. Can you relate to the above example? What if you had a way to turn toward these parts with curiosity and respect and find out what they're really trying to say and then bring them into alignment? The Inside Team approach shows you how to go behind the curtain so that you can discover the way you think and understand what these parts of you really want. By doing so your creativity and resourcefulness will have room to grow turning internal conflict into clarity negative thoughts into positive ones and moving forward with more ease and fun in your life. For over 25 years Master Coach Cynthia Loy Darst has been helping people achieve what they really want in their lives. Known as a coach's coach her Inside Team trainings are highly sought after by life coaches executive coaches therapists and those wanting to make meaningful change in their lives.

A Leader's Destiny Elias Aboujaoude, 2024-05-21. A psychiatrist puts leadership on the couch with a provocative exploration of its crucial, often-ignored psychological and personal character foundations. Elias Aboujaoude's distinctive exploration of leadership provides unusual insight into understanding who should and should not be striving for leadership positions. Dr. Aboujaoude takes on the culture at large, explaining how our cult-like obsession with leadership gives narcissists an edge and results in leadership failure everywhere we look and how resisting the imperative to rise at all costs can leave many with an inferiority complex. His takedown of the leadership industrial complex—an unholy alliance of gurus, coaches, business school professors and TED talkers from Harvard—on down pokes a very sharp elbow into an industry seemingly united in a modern form of alchemy to create leadership gold, a waste of time, money and effort since leadership cannot be taught through books or coaching and cannot be bought. Rather, Dr. Aboujaoude vividly illustrates leaders emerge from a unique combination of personal, psychological and situational factors that may not be easily controlled To a large degree great leaders are born or happen with the help of innate temperament talent opportunity circumstances and timing Frank and unflinching this refreshing take on a classic subject with its focus on the art of knowing yourself provides new insight into whether your psychology is aligned with the requirements of effective and happy leadership The effect is to empower readers to understand themselves and step up if they have what it takes to lead or find equally rewarding often superior ways to achieve fulfillment and leave their mark if they don't
